

ABOUT US

Redwood Marketing is a representative for high-end audio and video equipment manufacturers. We only sell products that we feel are superior in every sense of the word - that is what "Hi Fidelity" is all about. Redwood Marketing strives to provide our business partners with a superior level of service on multiple levels, including training, merchandising, marketing, and in-store support.

Redwood Marketing was founded in January 2004 on the principles of superior customer support, product training and dealer development. We have dedicated product specialists in the field everyday making sure that product is working properly, effectively merchandised, and training salespeople and installers. We are committed to strong dealer training, merchandising, marketing and sales promotions. In short, there is no substitute for being in the field and working directly with our dealers.

Redwood Marketing offers a unique knowledge of retailing as well as the custom installation market. This additional support results in satisfied customers that are loyal to Redwood Marketing and the brands we represent. We feel the best way to ensure our success is to ensure our dealers' success.
